

Manhattan Office Sales Volume & Buying Trends – June 2021

COVID-19 surfaced in the United States in Mid-March 2020. Federal, state, and local governments responded by issuing strict stay-at-home orders and closing nonessential business. Trends in investment sales, vacancy rates, rent collection rates, and unemployment underscore the crippling effects of COVID-19 on American consumers and businesses alike. The New York Daily New Case table below highlights the progression of daily case counts. As of Q2 2021, societal conditions surrounding the COVID-19 Pandemic have undoubtedly improved. Vaccines are now available to all individuals aged 12 or older in New York State, and hospitalizations and number of new cases continue to decrease. Governor Cuomo is loosening occupancy restrictions as of June 2021 pertaining to indoor and outdoor gatherings and business capacity limits. Whereas social conditions continue to improve, markets are still being affected by COVID-19. As the calendar turns toward summer and restrictions continue to be lifted, investors will be looking for sustainable trends in transaction volume and pricing that have yet to occur.

With COVID on the forefront, fundamentals in many major markets have been greatly altered. This publication analyzes sales trends in terms of number of transactions and dollar volume for office properties in the Manhattan market, encompassing the Downtown, Midtown South, Midtown, and Uptown submarkets.

SALES (2019-2021): Volume

The number of monthly, Class A & B Office transactions in the Manhattan market has been uniform, with no month registering more than 8 transactions. The market tallied a consistent number of sales from May 2019 through January 2020. Since then, the market has remained soft with very few sales occurring since April 2020. There have only been four sales in the “over $100 million” tranche since September 2020, three of which occurred in December 2020, one in May 2021, and two in June 2021.

Dollar Volume of Sales

Dollar volume of sales is noticeably lower after April 2020 compared to the prior period. Dollar volume is highly skewed by the sale of trophy assets in the office market. The dollar volume of $3.12 billion in June 2019 appears to be an outlier in the data set. December 2020 saw dollar volume on par with the pre-COVID period. Dollar volume has increased each of the last four months, although it remains much lower than historical figures.

Sale Price Per Square Foot

Over the period, sale price per square foot has ranged from $222 per square foot to $2,627 per square foot, averaging $834 per square foot. From January 2019 to March 2020, Class A & B Office properties sold at an average price of $766 per square foot. From June 2020 to April 2021, these properties sold at an average of $979 per square foot, which is skewed by the October and June 2020 price per square foot figure of $2,627 and $2,122, respectively. Excluding this figure, the average price per square foot from June 2020 to June 2021 is $668. Overall, the wide fluctuations in pricing may be less concerning than the abject lack of sales volume.
