

New York Regional Retail Sales Volume & Buying Trends – June 2021

COVID-19 surfaced in the United States in Mid-March 2020. Federal, state, and local governments responded by issuing strict stay-at-home orders and closing nonessential business. Trends in retail sales, vacancy rates, rent collection rates, and unemployment underscore the crippling effects of COVID-19 on American consumers and businesses alike. The New York Daily New Case table below highlights the progression of daily case counts relative to legislation imposed by state and local governments. As of Q2 2021, societal conditions surrounding the COVID-19 Pandemic have undoubtedly improved. Vaccines are now available to all individuals aged 12 or older in New York State, and hospitalizations and number of new cases continue to decrease. Governor Cuomo has loosened occupancy restrictions pertaining to indoor and outdoor gatherings and business capacity limits. Whereas social conditions continue to improve, markets are still being affected by COVID-19. As the calendar turns toward summer and restrictions continue to be lifted, investors will be looking for sustainable trends in transaction volume and pricing that have yet to occur.

With COVID on the forefront, fundamentals in many major markets have been greatly altered. This publication analyzes sales trends in terms of number of transactions and dollar volume for retail properties across the New York regional market. The study area is shown below.

SALES (2019-2021): Volume

Pre-COVID-19, sales volume was consistent, and fluctuations were generally modest. April 2020 saw a significant drop in number of transactions, which fell further in May 2020. Number of transactions was generally consistent from June 2020 through May 2021 before posting a significant decrease in June 2021. Altogether, Q2 2021 posted 376 total transactions compared to 240 transactions in Q2 2020, which suggests sales volume has rebounded since the lows of the pandemic. We do note that only 85 transactions were recorded in June 2021. Additional data is required to confirm whether this is an outlier or start of a downward trend.

Dollar Volume of Sales

Whereas number of transactions since April 2020 are below pre-COVID levels, the decrease in dollar volume has been more pronounced. Since April 2020, there have been only eight months with sales volume over $400 million, whereas every month from January 2019 to March 2020 topped this threshold. In fact, the lowest pre-COVID monthly sales total of $405 million would rank eighth highest of the fifteen-month post-COVID period.

Sale Price Per Square Foot

From January 2019 to March 2020, retail properties sold at an average price of $367 per square foot. From April 2020 to May 2021, these properties sold at an average of $295 per square foot. Price per square foot decreased sharply in June 2020 and has largely remained below pre-COVID levels since. Price per square foot was more uniform in May and June 2021 after sharp fluctuations over the prior six months.
