

Manhattan Office Sales Volume & Buying Trends – February 2021

COVID-19 surfaced in the United States in Mid-March 2020. Federal, state and local governments responded by issuing strict stay-at-home orders and closing nonessential business. Trends in retail sales, vacancy rates, rent collection rates, and unemployment underscore the crippling effects of COVID-19 on American consumers and businesses alike. The New York Daily New Case table below highlights the progression of daily case counts relative to legislation imposed by state and local governments. A new high in case counts led to the implementation of the mask mandate in April 2020. Effective social distancing and mask mandates helped curb case counts over spring and summer 2020, and restrictions loosened. Colder weather and an increase in indoor gatherings around the holidays sent case counts surging again in the late fall and winter, shattering the previous high set in April 2020. Unemployment spiked over the period, reaching a high of 15.9 percent in New York State in July. The unemployment rate decreased over the following five months before a slight increase in January 2021. Attention now turns to the rollout of the COVID-19 vaccine and its effects on consumer sentiment and underlying market performance.

With COVID on the forefront, fundamentals in many major markets have been greatly altered. This publication analyzes sales trends in terms of number of transactions and dollar volume for office properties in the Manhattan market, encompassing the Downtown, Midtown South, Midtown, and Uptown submarkets.

SALES (2019-2021): Volume

The number of monthly, Class A & B Office transactions in the Manhattan market has been uniform, with no month registering more than 8 transactions. The market tallied a consistent number of sales from May 2019 through January 2020. Since then, the market has remained soft with very few sales occurring since April 2020.

Dollar Volume of Sales

Dollar volume of sales is noticeably lower after April 2020 compared to the prior period. Dollar volume is highly skewed by the sale of trophy assets in the office space. The dollar volume of $3.12 billion in June 2019 appears to be an outlier in the data set. December 2020 saw dollar volume on par with the pre-COVID period, but dollar volume has been negligible thus far in Q1 2021.

Sale Price Per Square Foot

Over the period, sale price per square foot has ranged from $0 per square foot to $2,627 per square foot, averaging $742 per square foot. From January 2019 to March 2020, Class A & B Office properties sold at an average price of $715 per square foot. From April 2020 to February 2021, these properties sold at an average of $780 per square foot, which is largely attributable to the October price per square foot figure of $2,627. Excluding this figure, the average price per square foot from April 2020 to January 2021 is $595, a decrease of 31%. Overall, the wide fluctuations in pricing may be less concerning than the abject lack of sales volume.
